

A MESSAGE ON FAITH

By Tony Escobar, April 2005

There are, in my opinion, two kinds of faith. The first is what encourages you to basically live and survive. Faith will always give you hope and the opportunity for persistent achievement.

The second kind of faith is the faith that causes and allows things to happen. It is the faith that attracts opportunity to you. It is the faith that motivates and inspires you.

Faith is a thousand times more powerful than any weapon on earth. You will never know just how powerful it is until you engage it, immerse your whole being into it, exercise it and practice it.

Never take faith for granted. It is only through total immersion into it that you will ever understand it.

The opposite of faith is fear; if you are lacking faith then you have become a victim of fear.

When you look at yourself in the mirror, ask yourself,

“How much faith do I have in myself or my purpose or how afraid am I?”

Faith will always induce things to happen.
